Acadiana Local Food Directory

The Acadiana Local Food Directory is a yearly publication maintained by Acadiana Food Alliance and is a guide of farms, markets, grocers, restaurants, and small businesses that are a part of the local food system. If you live in the Acadiana area, be sure to download the latest Local Food Directory and remember to buy, eat and experience local!

TAKE the LOCAL FOOD PLEDGE!

Did you know that by eating locally-sourced food you are supporting not only your community growers, but also your local economy, ecosystem, and developing better health habits? Consider adopting local food into your lifestyle through continual support.

"I, _____, pledge to spend $10/week on locally-produced food from the Acadiana region."

- About the Alliance -

Formed in 2014, the Acadiana Food Alliance began when small farmers, community leaders, local officials, non-profit organizations, restaurateurs and food industry professionals came together to map, understand, and strengthen the area food economy. The goal of our organization is the development of a place-based food economy in the greater Acadiana area.

The GrowAcadiana campaign aims to increase sales and consumption of local food, to develop new market opportunities for regionally produced agricultural products, and to expand this area's local food enterprises. Managed by the Acadiana Food Alliance, it provides resources to food-related businesses as well as the broader community.
